ENOUGH is a new Tasmanian theatre work that engages directly with the impacts of family violence. It explores one family's experience in a deeply honest, raw, and human way.

Patrons are advised that this theatre production contains strong adult themes, coarse language and references to: family violence, coercive control, sexual violence, strangulation, late fetal death, post-traumatic stress, animal cruelty, misidentification of victim and offender, commission of inquiry, and child abuse. It is not suitable for audiences under 16 years of age. Audience discretion is advised.

ENOUGH is being delivered with support from specialised Sexual and Family Violence service organisations to ensure audiences have access to appropriate information, support and care.

Theatre has a unique capacity to foster empathy, challenge perceptions, and inspire reflection and action in ways few other art forms can. We hope the presentation of this work will help lift the silence around family violence, encourage meaningful conversation, and contribute to positive social change.
